End Abuse & the Wisconsin Coalition Against Sexual Assault, in collaboration with Urban Triage, welcome domestic violence and sexual assault advocates across WI to monthly training sessions in which Brandi Grayson hosts discussions about how racism and white supremacy create and compound chronic trauma, and how examination of these topics aid in developing social justice centered leadership. During these sessions, Brandi will address how discussed concepts and practices can be applied to our paid and unpaid anti-violence movement work. All sessions will be recorded.

Questions can be directed to: tdennis@urbantriage.org

Brandi Grayson is the Founder & CEO of Urban Triage and CEO of Grayson Consulting, LLC. She's also a Community Activist, radio talk show host on Talk 92.7FM, orator, writer, and standup comedian. According to Brandi, her most important contribution and roles are that of a mother and treatment foster parent. Brandi has 15 years of experience in racial justice and program development movement work. Her passion for developing programs to build capacity within marginalized communities lead her to work on police brutality, economic justice, transformative justice, racial justice, and civil rights campaigns.
